GOVERNMENT

Fire Alarm

For the six years preceding last December the average number of fire calls in Carmel for the month was six, although in December of 1960 there was only one, a dog house. But in December of 1962 twenty-four calls frantically jangled the bell in the fire house and sent equipment surging out to answer the alarm.

Against such emergencies Carmel has poised a well-equipped department — a new $30,000 American-La France pumper was delivered to the fire house last Tuesday — but has found it a growing problem to man the equipment. Today there are only 28 members of the volunteer department, a devoted and efficient outfit, whose fire-eating has ranged over the years from burning buildings to blazing council meetings and four-alarm firehouse skirmishes.

Through it all the department, at times listing better than forty members on its roster, has provided a safety service rarely equalled in other volunteer outfits and seldom surpassed by many of the professional departments.

Today, however, it finds this efficiency threatened by nothing of its own doing, only by what has happened to Carmel: it is growing old and there isn't enough youthful vigor to regenerate the ranks. Of the twenty-eight active members, only seven live in the city. And the average age of the entire department is creeping up.

Chief Smith and the volunteers are looking anxiously for recruits, men who have resided in the Carmel area for at least one year, who are under 45, and who are in good physical condition. They may apply at the firehouse for further information.

In the more vital days of the past, a call such as this would have brought plenty of men. Today it may bring an urgently needed two or three. Or none.

Irrespective of the response, however, the fires will go on, proving, if nothing else, that Carmel is a residential community. In the calendar year just past there were 39 fires in residences, only 13 in institutions, and just 3 in stores. Altogether, 328 alarms were sounded, an average of almost one a day for the entire year, sending the thin ranks scrambling to the big red engines for another grim run through the village streets.

Why No Help?

Someone to produce next summer's series of Forest Theater Sundays, the popular weekend variety shows which the Arts Commission sponsors, is urgently needed. The casual occasions, in the two years of entertaining and colorful programming, have enjoyed spectacular popularity. The annual concert of the Stuart Highlanders Bagpipe Band has been the climax, a wild and exciting event featuring a parade on Ocean Avenue drawing hundreds of people.

But the burden of production, carried almost exclusively last year by Glenn Kearns, is proving tedious, and the Commission is anxiously seeking some support to keep the respected event going.

It seems like such a logical project for a service club, or for college drama majors in residence, that it mystifies some why no club, the high school, nor even Monterey Peninsula College has responded to the request. But in this self-conscious community, it seems, traditions are most enjoyed as something to remember, not to anticipate.

Chairmen

Elected last week by fellow members:

Chairman of the Carmel Arts Commission, Marjorie Wurzmann; vice chairman, Hazel McLellan.

Chairman of the Carmel Forestry Commission, Robert Strum; vice chairman, Gene Ricketts.

PEOPLE

County Seat

The county has recently removed the trash receptacles from the length of Scenic drive because so many of the local residents were using them for the disposal of home garbage.

This created a problem for a lady. Her sensitive artistic eye, dwelling appreciatively on the intriguing arrangement of driftwood cast along the beach, stuttered in distress over one grouping which featured a venerable, but glaring white, seaweed-festooned, toilet seat.

After some hesitation she approached, looked carefully in all directions, then resolutely picked up the bit of artistic ribaldry and marched off to dispose of it in a receptacle; but there were none. For quite some time she cast a raffish hue on local color, trotting about with the object. Even the Carmel Police Department could not help her. Eventually, she took it home and buried it.

Whose Bird?

Mrs. Laura Greenwood, of the Serra apartments, on Mission near 5th, has a blue parakeet, but it's not hers. It flew in her window recently, and likes her. It bathes in the dish water. It pecks her cat on the nose. It is a friendly bird, but it isn't hers. If you've lost one, call Mrs. Greenwood at MA 4-2397, and discuss the matter with her. If she likes you, she may return the bird.

SCHOOLS

We Are Bigger

Tuesday, voters in the down-coast Palo Colorado School District voted 35 to 5 to join the Carmel Unified School District. Together with the Captain Cooper district further south, which had voted on 8 January 76 to 4 to join Carmel, the two districts will add approximately 80 elementary and 20 high school and junior high school students to the unified district.

As a result of the annexation, voters of the down-coast areas will be able to vote for trustees in the 16 April elections, and to file for candidacy if they choose.

Candidate

Mrs. Herbert B. Blanks has filed nomination papers for election to a membership on the Board of Trustees of the Carmel Unified School District, a position she now holds by virtue of appointment to fill a vacancy created by the resignation last year of Betsy Bennett.

The filing is not altogether unexpected, since the Board, at the time of making the appointment, was seeking a person willing to run for election this year. Filing of nomination papers closes on 1 March.

Editor's Window

Last week, you may remember, I was stalking the corridors of the State Supreme Court building, wondering aloud why all of us in Monterey County, a couple of fellows from Tennessee named Baker vs. Carr, and a band of untaxed Indians should be there at the invitation of Colonel Allen Griffin.

While I find it difficult to get very close to untaxed Indians, I didn't have much trouble striking up an aquaintance with Baker vs. Carr, who turned out to be two people, not just one person with a funny name.

They were, it seems, responsible for a U. S. Supreme Court decision that the Fourteenth Amendment of the U. S. Constitution was being violated because representatives in Congress weren't proportionally distributed among Tennessee congressional districts.

This was enough for Colonel Griffin, who has long been glowering at things up here and finding them distasteful, particularly as between the First County Supervisorial District, which has 938 voters, and our Fifth District, which has 34, 059 voters.

I approached the Indians, who are involved via the Fourteenth itself, and asked them what they thought of this extremely interesting state of affairs. "Ugh," they responded. I couldn't agree with them more.

This leaves you, me, the Colonel and Baker against Carr; and I'm still wondering what they have to do with you and me.

Their dispute over congressional representation is pretty remote from the skirmishing going on around here. Their fight was over ONE house of a TWO-house legislature, and that one house is supposed to represent nothing but people by the numbers. This is, however, only one part of the total legislative structure in which something entirely different than people is also represented. For, in the Senate of the United States, seats are allocated uniformly, irrespective of how many or how few people live in each state.

The Constitution, in other words, recognizes that there is more to people than just numbers; and it also recognizes that something unassailable has to be done to secure the minority against the tyranny of the majority. It is a fact that these reasons motivated the unique composition of our Federal legislative branches.

It is also a fact that the Colonel supported this theory and practice when it was attacked at home. He fought like the dickens against Proposition 23 in the recent state elections. The proponents of the proposition simply said that the state Senate was stacked against the majority of the population because it was constituted along geographical lines, and the population majority, situated in southern California, was being discriminated against. The Colonel would have none of it then, so why is he so obssessed with the idea when it is applied to our own county?

One would suspect him of assuming postures of convenience rather than conviction; of attitudes of self-interest rather than disinterest. That is, if one did not know the Colonel better. So, I am assuming that the Colonel hasn't had a chance to examine the matter any better than we have, and

BUSINESS

Discount Rumors

Rumors of a discount house operation opening in Carmel have rumbled around the streets for the past several weeks. They are concerned with the implications of a little cardboard sign hanging in a door on 6th Avenue west of Mission, which says, "United Factors, Inc."

At present, the business is only selling supplies for architects, but co-owner Dave Wald has said that it will soon expand into an import department store operation.

"It will be sort of like San Francisco's Cost-Plus operation," Wald has declared. This means a carefully accentuated warehouse-cum-market-stall environment for the sale of patio furniture, household goods, gift items, and possibly clothing and food. Wald claims that the business will be aimed at residents of the Peninsula, rather than towards the tourist.

Some possibility apparently exists that the operation will also sub-lease space to other entrepre-

WHAT'S DOING

D. D. Muir, your Telephone Manager in Carmel

Ever wonder how the Long Distance Operator takes down information when you place a call with her? She uses a special electrographic pencil to record the needed information on a printed card. With this method the operator can do it faster if you give her the information in this order: (1) Area code and number you're calling; (2) any special instructions; and (3), when she asks, your own number. This way it's possible to start your call right after step (1) and can save time in completing your operator handled calls.

Question: Is a telephone animal, vegetable or mineral? Answer: All three are contained in the materials from which telephones are made.

Today's high school science students have a wealth of interesting new things to learn about. For these future scientists, the Bell System has developed special teaching aids—kits of demonstration equipment, films and text by leading Bell Labs scientists. They bring to life subjects like wave behavior (shown here), magnetism and solar energy. These teaching aids may be made available to high school science departments by calling the Monterey business office, —375-4101.

The shortest distance between two friends is a telephone call.

Looks like this girl might be holding a pile of soft TV pillows. Actually, those are foamed-plastic shipping cases for delicate telephone parts. One carton weighs a mere 8 ounces, but it's rigid, moisture-proof, and strong enough to support a man's weight. Inside, it's specially molded so phone parts fit securely to protect them from shipping damage.

A Couple Of Double Bogies And Thou, Oh Bing

By JACK MORRIS

Blue Pacific waters, a light dusting of southwest winds and brilliant skies should embrace the three local courses selected for the jousting of the Crosby Tourney, creating a deceptive mood of easy pickings this year for the incoming horde of professionals who will play from the 17th through the 20th, at Pebble Beach, Cypress Point and the Country Club.

Easy pickings they may have, except that most of the professionals have never seen golf courses such as these. They are accustomed to things like the 7,000-yard Rancho Club, scene of the Los Angeles Open, where scores in the low 60's were not uncommon. The same holds true of the just-completed San Diego Open, where Player waltzed in with a total 18 under par. In fact, 35 or more contestants came in under par.

These are samples of what the touring pros term "cheap" golf courses. Not monetarily speaking, although the touring pro treats a buck almost like a baseball player, but cheap in the sense that birdies come so easily.

Of course, there will be hot rounds, and one or two pros will be lucky enough to have all of their game on hand at the same time, but the tale of the Crosby is the tale of lost opportunities.

EXCUSES, EXCUSES

Heard on every hand is the moaning and groaning of the competitors. . . "I was going along fine until I took three double bogies in a row," or "I hit every green and not only missed every birdie but three-putted four greens."

Many times on the tour the pros are forced to play winter rules because the course is in such wretched condition, but it is their scoring advantage. Also, they rarely play along a beach that sucks up golf balls and on a course which adds stroke AND distance to the score for the hole each time. A couple of double bogies garnered in this fashion can wipe out 16 beautifully played holes; in this case, 70 holes.

E. J. (Dutch) Harrison almost blew it one year by taking a 7 on the very last hole. Gene Littler did blow it by knocking one into the ocean on the last hole, and Bob Rosburg won it last year when the leaders came unglued and he was able to pick up about nine strokes on the last round at Pebble Beach.

THE COURSES

There is nothing in the country like this combination of courses. The Monterey Peninsula Country Club, with its tight pine-clad fairways and coarse-grained greens and heavy fairway soil, surprises the contestant with gummy second shots yanked far off line.

The Cypress Point Club looks like a soft touch and there will be a few very low scores there, but the fairways are like foam rubber and the ball must be picked clean for each iron shot. There are three playing routes from tee to green on each hole. The greens are tricky: they are absolutely true and the nervous competitor looking for breaks on his putts will find out, only after missing, that there are none. Dr. Alastaire MacKenzie, who designed the course, was a master of deception and had an architectural change of pace that still keeps the top-notcher constantly off balance.

The tenth is an easy birdie played straight away. The eleventh is an even bogey because, while it looks straight away, it curves. The twelfth is a harsh dog-leg, the thirteenth a funnel shaped drive and pitch with the green at the small end of the funnel, and the fourteenth is one of the most difficult par fours in the land. The last four holes are perfect samples of this change of pace and unless the player knows when to charge a hole and when to play safe he can easily drop 10 or 12 strokes on this group.

It was no error on MacKenzie's part that caused men like the late Porky Oliver to take 16 on, the sixteenth, and Jackie Burke to pick up on the next to last hole and walk himself right out of the yearly Vardon ratings.

The course was designed and built as a medal play layout, to be easy for the medium and high handicap amateur and to strip the conceit from the scratch man or pro. It proves itself each year.

Pebble Beach is diametrically opposite. There is nothing sly about it. It walks right in to you, with both hands up, and Lord have mercy on you if you can't hit that ball.

Any pro worthy of the name should be able to see the slope from the high ridge on the east to the ocean on the west, but unfortunately most of them are accustomed to hitting a tee shot and then reaching for a wedge. This is why so many fall on their anguished noses right here: they have learned to hit the ball but they have never learned how to play golf; they cannot plan their play under various conditions and cannot vary their game to suit local conditions. The spectator will see many driving briskly, putting well but scoring in the high 70's and middle 80's because they have played the wrong side of this course.

If the course were a fighter it could be beaten with a hook, but like a strong fighter, it really puts the pressure on you in the last few rounds. From the 11th on, it becomes increasingly difficult, and a player should be three or four under par going to the eighth in order to be reasonably certain of finishing at 72.

ONCE UPON A TIME

This tourney is now more popular with the amateurs than with the touring pros. The amateurs have fun, and with their improved playing handicap more often than not they are able to brag about "helping their horse into the money."

The majority of the pros are frustrated and snarling because, while it is a no-expense run for them, many who finish in the money feel as though they have been pushed and buffeted by someone or something they couldn't quite handle. In other words, while they picked up some dough they lost their pride.

The whole event has changed a great deal since it was inaugurated years ago at Rancho Santa Fe for Bing's friends among the pros and amateurs. Then, Herman Barron, a good pro, could come up to the last hole with a chance for a piece of the money and hear two competitors sitting on the bank in back of the green, glasses in hand, say to one another, "Boy, I hope Herman finishes strong; he needs the money."

Could this happen now?

It was a good party then, and may be again this year. While the event is straining at its bonds in its rapid growth, Crosby was heard to say in 1947, "We would like to invite everybody, but it is impossible to move more than 150 golfers around between daylight and dark on these short winter days."

Hah!

There are 300 entries this year, with 50 of the old standbys sent to the sidelines and the same number of new amateur faces added. There will be no scoring cut until the last day, when the top 50 teams plus the leading pros and amateurs will put up their dukes with Pebble Beach. If the weather continues fair, some previously unknown should come marching in. If it toughens up and starts to blow, then an old campaigner will find the thing his private coconut tree.

AN AMATEUR BALL

Neither Player nor Palmer should win. It is not grim enough here for them. The awful tightness of sharp competition is almost lost in the atmosphere of fun and sheer enjoyment, and even the sharpest dollar hunter finds himself unwittingly relaxing.

To repeat, this is an amateur tournament, for amateur players, and what is more, for amateur galleries.

The boys shouldn't become so incensed because they drop a stroke at the squeal of a doll who has just turned her ankle when her high heel caught in a trap. She didn't come here to see them, anyhow.

Dean Martin or Bob Hope or Dennis O'Keefe, or a glimpse of one, Crosby, is the reason for the visit. For a look at a golf pro she couldn't care less.

This could be why the pros rate the local galleries as unruly. Too many cameras, too much run-

Stock Market Analysis

By John D. Gates

The Dow-Jones stock market averages have been rising consistently during the past several months. These averages are composed of sixty-five of the most widely held stocks. They do not necessarily reflect the activity in lesser known issues; most of the upsurge has been in the more prominent issues. The rise has not been as general in the other issues. Also, it seems that the greatest activity has been generated by professional traders and institutional buying rather than by the general public.

What is necessary to induce the small investor to come back into the market?

The one element that is essential for public participation is confidence. That is, confidence in the prospects for economic growth with resulting corporate profits.

At present, the federal government takes over one-half of corporate profits, but it seems to be proposing some relief through tax cuts of about 5%. The anticipation of even this much relief undoubtedly has had a stimulating effect on stock prices. However, the government could do more toward this end if it would clear away some of the ambiguities in the fiscal policies it is following. Some of the inconsistencies in its policies and philosophy have not yet been explained to the satisfaction of many who are in a position to invest.

Some of the contradictions between official theories are these:

1. Lower taxes produce more revenue.
2. Greater prosperity generates greater debts.
3. Larger deficits produce inflation, but future deficits, though larger, will not produce inflation.

Whether these are precise definitions is not particularly pertinent. The problem is that many potential investors are apprehensive about the soundness of the judgement of those who promulgate these theories that become the basis for official action. The one encouraging sign is that many who advocated high taxation as a way of life for this country are recognizing now that it has a stifling effect on economic progress.

If a change of attitude can occur in that area, we can hopefully look for an eventual return to more orthodox policies in the handling of all fiscal affairs, with a resulting restoration of a favorable and fruitful investment climate that should benefit all segments of our society.

for the same reason: his impetuous journey to court.

I am not contending particularly with him over whether redistricting is necessary or not, only over his reasons and the nature of his prayer to the court. It all clearly indicates to me that he has put the word "proportional" before the word "representation." This is not an error of syntax, it is a fault of understanding.

It is a failure to grasp the purpose of representative government, and a failure to comprehend that when we have only ONE legislative agency in county government, a strict proportional division is absurd and contradictory. For, what government should represent is not only people but the purposes of people — people in the minority as well as in the majority; their institutions, their occupations, the principles to which they are devoted, their property, the beliefs which they have embraced, and their ambitions. For these are the reasons why people submit to government, to see their aspirations—not their numbers—prevail.

The Colonel also ignores the demonstrable fact that numbers are not holy. In fact, exempting the House of Representatives, proportional representation is the exception rather than the rule. The President, the Senate, and a vast number of state officers and other elective officials are determined without regard to numbers of constituents. The Fourteenth may have been flaunted in Tennessee, but it was a violation of an instance, not an axiom.

And, finally, we come to the largest single political segment of our nation, which is totally without proportional representation: the citizen in his city. The city, town and village councils, aldermen, selectmen and commissioners are determined arbitrarily as to number, with no regard for proportion to population. And yet it is representation. And representation that no one finds onerous. Not even the Indians.

I think that the Colonel has succumbed to the innocent affliction of the majority: an ambition to dominate, towards the accomplishment of which purpose he has trampled over a lot of pretty good notions.

I think, once again, that the Colonel has mistaken the majesty of numbers for the equality of democratic representation. And I also think that the Colonel may have lost sight of a bit of local history.

Its name was Andy Jacobsen, who apparently, in effectively representing the Peninsula, found neither awe nor frustration in being outnumbered.

Which only suggests that what really annoys Colonel Griffin is not the quantity but the quality of our representation on the Board of Supervisors.

As they say on the reservation, if you can't join them, outnumber them.

A top west coast merchandising award has gone to Margaret Mason, one of six buyers nominated by the West Coast Salesmen's Association for its 1962 Buyer of the Year honor. The presentation was made last Saturday at a reception and dinner in the Sheraton-Palace Hotel, San Francisco.

Thirty years' experience in the apparel trade, which commenced at Capwell's, in Oakland, continued with the Emporium, San Francisco, and Franklin Simon, in Atlanta, Georgia, was culminated when Margaret and the late Bob Mason purchased the present store, formerly the property of the late Oscar Balzer.

ORGANIZATIONS

Humane Society

All members, as well as those interested in animal welfare, are invited to attend the semi-annual membership meeting of the Monterey County Humane Society, to be held Monday at 8 p.m. in the municipal court room, 559 Pacific Street, Monterey.

There will be a report of last year's activities.

Officers of the SPCA from the Carmel area include Marjorie Fontana, president; and board members Countess of Kinnoull, Mrs. J. L. May, Jules Kahofer and Franklin Brewer.

WHERE THERE'S LIFE

By Andre Hope

If one more person asks me, "Cold enough for you?" I'm going to strangle him/her/it with my mittens or muffler. No fingerprints and who'd convict me?

Incongruously, I am in the midst of preparing a tropical luau for the American Federation of Arts: up to here in bananas, cocoanuts and pineapple. Though I am catering for some one hundred people, I thought perhaps you might like a general idea of what to do about these opu orgies ("opu" means, generally, what a belly dancer needs most to be one).

First, you need a young pig, figuring one pound per person. Your favorite meat market can probably supply you one, given a week's notice. It can be stuffed with disjointed broilers lightly sauteed in peanut oil, or simply rubbed inside with a mixture of finely chopped fresh ginger and salt. Scrub the skin with cut lemon and lather with soy sauce and a pinch of caraway seed.

If your oven is commodious you can roast it at home; otherwise, one of our friendly neighborhood bakeries will be glad to do it for you; moderate oven until thoroughly done. For further information, ask Paul of Carmel Taxi.

Don't forget to put a wood block in his mouth (the pig's, not Paul's) which will later be replaced with an apple or orange. Also be sure to score his back here and there. Oh, yes; and wrap the ears and tail in aluminum foil.

Before serving, eyes can be simulated by using either cherries or stuffed olives — make the piglet look as though he had been to the party before it even started. Serve with baked yams, baked bananas in their skins, (cracked crab in season), a salad of cucumbers with sliced green onions bathed in a Japanese sauce of toasted, crushed sesame seeds, vinegar, sugar and soy sauce. Dessert? Cocoanut pudding. Drink? Fruit punch, spiked or unspiked with rum.

This is all a great deal easier than it sounds, and if your friends are agile you can always serve on the floor. Only two things to remember — have an expert carver on hand and be sure that the spike in the punch is judicious so that those who descend for the dinner can also arise and be counted.

Next week we will have post prandial-notes on the Crosby tournament. I think I can also promise you a few surprises. Meanwhile, shall we do a non-rain (or should I say non-snow?) dance? I think it consists of standing perfectly still and shaking your fist at a putter or possibly the skies.

CARMEL LOSES THREE

By Hardwood Harry

Last Friday was a dark day in Carmel High sports. The King City Mustangs took the measure of the Padres 45-40 after defeating the JVs by 38-35 and the Lightweights in a triple overtime by 39-37.

The Mustangs jumped off to an 11 point lead in the first quarter and Carmel fought back to a two point advantage at the end of the half. The score favored Carmel by three points in the third quarter and by the same margin going into the fourth quarter. At this time Coach Dick Lawitzke decided to force the King City five to come out of the zone defense they had been using all during the game. The Mustangs preferred to sit back and wait for the mistakes to happen and happen they did — still leading into the last two minutes by three points, a bad pass, a foul, another bad pass and a foul and King City was leading by three points with less than a minute to go in the game. Carmel scored with 15 seconds to go, but still trailed by 1 point. In trying to get the ball, Carmel fouled a King City boy — he hit both free shots and that was the ball game. A desperation pass was intercepted which led to the final shot and the 5 point difference. But for three bad passes and a foul, the final could have been much different.

King City hit an average of 59% while Carmel managed 30%. Don't miss the return engagement at Carmel High School on 19 February.

The thriller of the evening was the Lightweight contest. Leading by 7 points in the third quarter, Carmel saw it dwindle away to a tie score at the end of the regulation time. In the third overtime DeLorenzo scored two free throws, only to have the Ponies score two free throws AND a basket to win 39-37. Jay Lang and Dave Risdon showed great promise in the losing effort.

Although the JV's were trailing by 20-7 at the end of the first half, some fine shooting by Al Nishimura, Bob Moffatt and John Tolan got the Padrebabes back into the game, only to see it go to King City in the last few minutes.

Sports Cars

By Ed Leslie

Notice that the "S" has been added to Sport, in our column head. Shows what can be done with grim determination against the usual insurmountable odds! (Editor's comment: The editor may be odd, but he is not insurmountable.)

We can't be too satisfied with this small triumph inasmuch as Ye Olde Typesetter for the Pine Cone was eating his lunch when he set up our last column, and omitted a most important line, about the relative margin of safety in your sports car tires. So-o-o, we'll do it over. Hang the expense.

We were attempting to show that the average 5.90x15 tire on your 2,000 lb. sports car had a safe rating of 1045 lbs each. This allows a total weight of about 4,400 lbs. in your lettle car, where the average "Big Three" car with 7:50x14 tires, rated at 1185 lbs. each, allows only 4800 lbs. total. (And the car generally weighs 4,000 lbs. empty!) Most wagons weigh 4,400 lbs., and not all of them carry 8:00x14 tires to make up the difference. Best you investigate what you ride upon in your family car.

Possibly a more serious result is gradually dawning in my tangled mind. No one—but not a soul—called or inquired as to what this incomplete paragraph intended to convey. I did call Editor Rose (collect) to see if the paper actually hit the streets last week; and sure enough, he had noticed the garbled message but dismissed it "because that eLslie is some sort of a nut, anyway." Shucks! That is enough to depress our cycle of behavior into an extended low. Color us blue.

It has been quite too cold to put the top down and go driving.

The Pebble Beach Sports Car Club did have a rally last Sunday, and attracted 32 of your Peninsula neighbors. The marshal in charge was Fraser Sibbald, and he rad taken 9 small dime-sized portions of a map of the County and magnified them up to two-inch size, traced them into an instruction sheet and told us all to find these on the map, plot the shortest distance possible to reach them all, pick up a numbered tag in a paper cup hidden at each spot and return to start-finish.

We wandered around the lettuce fields, out Nativadad road and the Old Stage Road to San Juan, and it was very beautiful in the clear cold air.

We were all surprised to see all the new building and new streets in the Prunedale area.

You should take the turn off just up the highway from the point where the Salinas Highway and the Fort Ord cutoff merge, meander around. You will enjoy it, and you'll discover a great deal of rapidly developing rural area.

The rally was fun. Bill Maison of Salinas won it with his knowledge of the back roads. Everyone agreed it was a low pressure fun-type event. Four cars didn's show up at all at the finish, and if they don't return in a week or two we will consider them lost.

Smog Control

Slowly and laboriously—for the task is as complicated by technical and numerical aspects as it is by bureaucratic inertia—the task of throttling some of the sources of smog lumbers along.

The State Motor Vehicle Pollution Control Board has finally approved two crankcase devices for installation on used cars and commercial vehicles commencing in 1964. By November of 1965, the board hopes to have such devices on approximately 90% of the state's car population. It could eliminate as much as 650 tons of hydrocarbons from the beleaguered Los Angeles atmosphere alone each day.

A surprising self-defeating feature of smog control laws allows individual counties, on a finding that no auto-caused pollution exists within its boundaries, to exclude itself from the mandatory requirements for used cars.

The so-called "Chrysler smog kit," recently the subject of happy shouting, is apparently not going to be the "miracle" device that some irresponsible rumors have claimed for it. This is avowed by the control board and substantiated by Chrysler engineers.

It will be great for new Chrysler products (and $5 to $10 cheaper than other units) but of no use on other makes. Furthermore, it can cut hydrocarbon emmissions only about 50% — and then, only if the car engine is properly maintained, something towards which the American motorist is outrageously indifferent.

In the meanwhile, the board is testing a new departure, the first foreign device submitted to them, a direct-flame afterburner designed for the Triumph TR-4, a popular English sports car, by Lucas, Ltd., major British component manufacturer.

It may not aid acceleration, like an afterburner in a jet engine, but Lucas thinks it will bring an intense reduction in smog emmission.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

The Apostle Luke's inspiring account of the raising of the widow's son from the dead will be heard at Christian Science services Sunday. Subject of the Lesson-Sermon is "Life."

The Golden Text is from Matthew (4:4): "It is written, Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God."

Passages to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will include this selection (p. 547): "The Scriptures are very sacred. Our aim must be to have them understood spiritually, for only by this understanding can truth be gained." And continuing on the same page: "It is this spiritual perception of Scripture, which lifts humanity out of disease and death and inspires faith."

JEHOVAH'S WITNESSES

William R. Lange, Carmel minister, was in charge of baptising newly ordained ministers at the 11 to 13 January convention of Jehovah's Witnesses at Paso Robles. According to Lange, 27 were added to the preaching fellowship of California Circuit No. 11 which includes 16 congregations from Arroyo Grande to Campbell.

Warning

When I am an old woman I shall wear purple
With a red hat which doesn't go, and doesn't suit me,
And I shall spend my pension on brandy and summer gloves
And satin sandals, and say we've no money for butter.
And I shall sit down on the pavement when I'm tired
And gobble up samples in shops and press alarm bells
And run my stick along the public railings
And make up for the sobriety of my youth.
I shall go out in my slippers in the rain
And pick the flowers in other people's gardens
And learn to spit.

You can wear terrible shirts and grow more fat
And eat three pounds of sausages at a go
Or only bread and pickle for a week
And hoard pens and pencils and beermats and things in boxes.

But meanwhile we must stay respectable
And must not shame the children; they mind more
Even than we do, being noticeable.
We will keep dry with sensible clothes and spend
According to good value, and do what's best
To bring the best for us and for our children.

But maybe I ought to practice a little now?
So people who know me are not too shocked and surprised
When suddenly I am old, and start to wear purple.

Woman's Club

Douglas Reeves, lecture entertainer, presented his International Treasure Chest program, a collection of literary anecdotes, comments, and ideas, to the Carmel Women's Club on Monday.

Miss Marion Eley, general program chairman, introduced Mr. Reeves, after Miss Ianthe Densmore, club president, welcomed the members.

Mr. Reeves, new to California, was born in London of a theatrical family, and has had extensive experience on stage and platform, as well as in television. He has lectured and taught drama in colleges, and has traveled and lived in England, Hawaii, and Switzerland, as well as America.

Audubon

A joint trip with the Santa Cruz Bird Club will take place on Wednesday. The groups will meet at 9 a.m. in the parking lot across from the post office in Mt. Hermon, which is north of Santa Cruz and easily reached from highways 17 and 9.

A field trip to Carrizo Plains, led by Eben McMillan, will be held on Saturday, 26 January. This may be the last chance to see Sandhill Cranes on their wintering grounds; land development in the immediate area has had an adverse effect upon them. Interested persons may write Mrs. Charles Anderson, 1015 Connely Street, Salinas, or telephone HA 4-6644.

Lunches should be brought for these all day trips.

Camera Club

Padre Trails Camera Club will show a collection of nature slides selected by the Photochrome Club of San Francisco from their recent San Francisco International Salon entitled Nature Subjects Often Overlooked. The showing will take place in the Carmel High School cafeteria room today at 8:00 p.m. Visitors are welcome.

A contest on general subjects, for club members, will be held on color slides and black and white prints.

High Twelve

Carmel High Twelve Club will meet tomorrow noon at the Carmel Masonic Temple. Leslie C. Deck will show two films, "Away From It All," and "Fun Skiing."

Alliance Francaise

Mrs. Henry Baron is ticket chairman for the recital of French music 25 January in the Monterey Peninsula College music hall, when the Alliance Francaise of the Monterey Peninsula will present Joan Goodwin, pianist, and Karen Steinke, mezzo-soprano.

Serving on Mrs. Baron's committee are Commander Frances Biadasz (USN), Mrs. Robert Clampett, Mrs. Claude Courteol, Mrs. Germaine Olivie, Mrs. Phyllis, Jervey, Mrs. John Dowdakin, and Jean Gabriel.

Chairman of the music committee is Mrs. George Podbereski, assisted by Mrs. Leonard Klene. Mrs. James Hathaway is in charge of ushers.

The concert will benefit the scholarship fund for students of French; Mrs. Baron is chairman of the scholarship committee. Tickets may be obtained at Abinante Music Store in Monterey, and the Browse-Around Music Shop in Carmel; also by telephoning Mrs. Baron, FR-2-5546; Mrs. Podbereski, FR 5-0547; or William Cano, MA 4-4653.

MPVS

At the opening meeting of the Monterey Peninsula Volunteer Services, 11 January at the USO in Monterey, Mrs. William H. Church, corresponding secretary, read a list of letters from recipients of gifts from MPVS during 1962. These included the Monterey County Symphony Association, the Citizens International Student Committee, the Community Hospital Auxiliary, Children's House, Monterey Peninsula Council for Retarded Children, Family Service Agency, Monterey Peninsula Christmas Bureau, and the Senior Citizens Club of Seaside.

Mrs. Franklin B. Mead, hospitality chairman, served the refreshments. Mrs. J. B. Farrior reported on the Thrift Shop, located at 785 Broadway, Seaside, and open every day except Saturday and Sunday from noon until 4 p. m., emphasizing the need for more merchandise, especially kitchen ware and bric-a-brac.

Officers of MPVS for 1963 are Mrs. W. Lincoln Noelle, president; Mrs. Harold F. Pullen, vice-president; Mrs. Gilbert Kinney, recording secretary; Mrs. William Howard Church, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Ruth Wingfield, treasurer; Mrs. Arthur Dresser, finance committee; Mrs. Franklin B. Mead, hospitality; Miss Clara M. Weston, nominating; Mrs. C. E. Howland, office supplies; Mrs. J. B. Farrior, Thrift Shop; Mrs. W. Egbert Schenck, publicity; Mrs. Archer Allen, by-laws.

Letters . . .

Dear Sir:

I would like to express my most sincere and deepest appreciation to the firemen of the State Division of Forestry and volunteers, who fought so valiantly to save the house in which I was living, to the deputy sherriffs, who did their best to ease the shock of seeing such a terrible fire, and to the many, many dear people who offered me a roof, clothing and sympathy.

Since I was a comparatively new member of the community, no one will know how deeply I was touched by their generosity.

To each and everyone thank you with all my heart.

Sincerely

From A Librarian's Notebook

By Ruth Galvin Thornburg

A new book by Lin Yutang, and this is his thirtieth published work. This one is entitled The Pleasures of a Nonconformist. Here are the thoughts, the probings, of an intellectual person of wide experience. He writes on many subjects. Chapter 15 is on The Crushed Fender School of Art. In it he tells of visiting a mental hospital. There he met a patient who had constructed a mobile over his bed; the articles included a bent tomato can, three matches, and a length of iron pipe. The patient explained the significance of the forms, their balance, the time it had taken for him to construct this bit of art, and in doing so he sounded exactly like a reviewer discribing an exhibit of modern art and finding meaning in blobs. It recalls the fact that recently a painting which was merely an entire canvas covered with black paint, received a prize. Ah me!

Eric and Barbara Whelpton have a new travel book entitled Greece and the Islands. The Mediterranean seems to be the place for travelers these days and this should be the book to read before starting. It is illustrated with many photographs, of course. From this book we can go in one easy step to The Palaces of Crete by James Graham of the University of Toronto. Only two hours by plane from Athens, the visitor goes back 3,500 years in time when he visits the palaces of King Minos on Crete. This book is intended to act as a guide to the palaces but it should be of interest to many who do not contemplate such a visit. There are diagrams, drawings, and photographs for illustration. This book would have been helpful to have at hand while reading Mary Renault's The King Must Die, due to a propensity for getting lost even while following Theseus in his journeyings through the palace.

Dr. Benjamin Spock, that Moses who leads parents to the promised land, has a new book entitled Problems of Parents. The doctor says that in his previous writing he has been "child-centered" but in this one he is parent-centered and discusses the problems of parents in raising their children in these days of tensions, television and movies, divorce and remarriage, dating and sex, and a thousand other things which distress and perplex the conscientious parent.

A rewarding book and a portrait of a truly great painter is Renoir, My Father, written by Jean Renoir, and translated from the French by Randolph and Dorothy Weaver. Here is Renoir, his thoughts, his actions, wife and family, friends, and works. Well illustrated, and authoritative.

We are a little short on novels this week but we do have a few. Among them is a delightful short novel by Rosalind Erskine which she has called The Passion Flower Hotel. This is a tongue-in-cheek book about a group of young boarding school girls in England. They were all around fourteen years of age. They knew the words and what they meant from reading a book entitled Prostitution—A Sociological Analysis. They decided to go into the business and they did. The whole affair makes a very funny book indeed. It is not to be taken seriously. There is a waiting list on it already because the reviews have been so good.

Chamber Concert

The chamber orchestra of the Monterey County Symphony and the brass ensemble of Monterey Peninsula College, under the leadership of John Gosling, conductor of the county symphony, will be heard in a concert this Sunday in the music hall on the college campus.

Ray Fabrizio, accomplished flutist, will appear as soloist in a performance by the chamber orchestra of Vivaldi's "Concerto for Piccolo." Also on the program will be "Symphony for Brass," by Ewald, and Beethoven's "Symphony No. 1."

The program commences at 4:00 p.m., and is presented with the cooperation of Local 616, American Federation of Musicians.

Famous Pianist

A pianist and musical scholar of world renown will be presented 18 January in Sunset Auditorium by the Carmel Music Society. She is Rosalyn Tureck, who made history three years ago when she became the first woman to conduct the New York Philharmonic. She also conducts her own chamber orchestra, the Tureck Chamber Ensemble, and performs with equal brilliance on the harpsichord.

Miss Tureck has gained wide recognition as an interpreter of the music of J. S. Bach. On the other hand, she scored a triumph with her performances of Beethoven's Emperor Concerto with the Hamburg and London Philharmonic Orchestras last season.

Heard regularly over the BBC in London, Rosalyn Tureck also was acclaimed for her appearances on the very popular Granada TV in Manchester — a station more accustomed to rock and roll than to Bach.

The American-born artist made her first European tour in 1947 and a spectacular London debut in 1953. Since that time she has been playing to sold-out houses throughout the continent.

Musical Evening

A "dollars for scholars" program, which is also an evening of music, will take place next Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Monterey Peninsula College music hall. Alpha Lambda chapter, Delta Kappa Gamma, national honorary association for women, will present Corliss Myers, harpsichord, Ann Harder and Sue Tweedy, tenor recorders, playing some unusual compositions from Shakespeare's time. Karen Steinke, mezzo-soprano, will sing and Kathryn Thompson will play three flute selections.

Others on the program will be Dorothy Heer and Angie Machado, local pianists. Muriel Brady and Sharon Jones, violinists, will join Marie Oliver, pianist, in music written especially for two violins and piano. Ako Ito, classical guitarist, will also perform.

Tickets for this scholarship benefit for young women who are interested in becoming teachers, may be purchased from any DKG member or at the door.

Water Colors

An exhibition of water colors by Eliot O'Hara will be shown at American Federation of Arts headquarters gallery in Carmel from 12 January to 10 February.

Paintings by O'Hara, a Guggenheim Fellowship winner and author of seven books and twenty-four films on traditional water color, are included in the permanent collections of 58 museums throughout the United States.

Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily.

SOUND-POST

By Jack Benson

A program of music from the Renaissance and Baroque eras was presented at Monterey Peninsula College last Friday night. It was heartening to notice that every seat in the music hall was taken before concert time; not so long ago concerts of early music held little attraction for the average music lover. But then, Monterey Peninsula audiences are not exactly average.

Performed by the Renaissance-Baroque Ensemble from San Francisco, the program included 16th century madrigals and chansons, and instrumental pieces of the 17th and 18th centuries.

In review, one was struck by the contrast in performance of, say, a chanson (1530) by Claudin de Sermisy and a trio sonata (about 1730) by Handel. The players approached the earlier work with a certain delicate respect, which is understandable considering the unfamiliarity of the music and some of the instruments. George Houle, musical director of the Renaissance-Baroque Ensemble, mentioned a few of the problems involved in interpreting ornaments which adorn the music, both for the singers and the players. And even though this group has gone far in their work with the scores and the handling of viols and recorders, there were moments when one was not quite sure what was happening.

Later, in the music of Handel, everything was clear and direct as Mr. Houle and James Matheson took up their oboes. I say "their" oboes because this is precisely the case. Both gentlemen chose the oboe as their instrument years ago and have performed steadily upon it, the result being a facility and acumen which would compare, I am sure, with that of a recorder player who lived in 1530. And the lusty freedom with which this Renaissance musician would have performed a chanson by Sermisy was not sensed in Houle's performance.

This is not a criticism, however, but merely suggests one reason for the blandness of much of this music as we hear it now in its first stages of revival. One must recall that recorder playing became all but extinct in the 18th century, and only recently has been taken up again. This is generally true of other Renaissance instruments as well as vocal practices of the time. But with the devoted work of such ensembles as Mr. Houle's we are brought closer to the spirit of Renaissance music.

Two nights later Margaret Fabrizio gave a recital in the Carmel Art Gallery. After a stop by the band concert at MPC where it was quickly registered that big band jazz, and not concert band music, is presently in the ascendance there, I arrived at the gallery in time to hear Mrs. Fabrizio play the squarely cut gigue which ends a suite for harpsichord by Gottlieb Muffat (1690-1770.) And then an intricate porcelain-like rondo by that clever keyboard contemporary of Beethoven, Muzio Clementi (1752-1832), followed by one of Rameau's "pieces de clavecin" and "The Bells" by William Byrd.

After a sketchy "apologia" for the state of most present-day harpsichord composition, Margaret Fabrizio, who is one of this country's up-and-coming harpsichordists, presented what she considered to be a superior contemporary work for the instrument.

It was a set of four studies of baroque forms by Daniel Pinkham, which were effective when not affected, but which, in terms of forthright realization of the harpsichord in full bloom, were eclipsed by any one of the five sonatas by Domenico Scarlatti played afterward.

Among The Pines

Twelfth Night Wedding For Carla

Carla Budd and Robert Gingery exchanged rings of antique gold, designed by a local artisan, when they were married 6 January in the Church of the Wayfarer, with the Reverend Victor H. Davis officiating.

The bride, who is the daughter of Mrs. Paul L. Budd of Carmel, and the late Mr. Budd, was escorted up the aisle by her grandfather, C. V. Budd, while Connell Carruth, at the organ, played Haydn's wedding music.

Carla's cocktail-length peau de soie gown was trimmed with duchess lace and embroidered with seed pearls. Lace edged the full pleated skirt. Her shoulder-length veil was of duchess lace, and she carried a cascade of white carnations and bouvardia. Her single-strand necklace of matched pearls was the gift of her godmother, Mrs. Richard Gump.

The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Christopher Wilkin (Niki Budd), whose dress was a peacock green silk sheath. A lace-edged chartreuse carnation topped her upswept coiffeur and she held a bouquet of chartreuse carnations and bouvardia.

The bridegroom, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Gingery of Richmond, asked Philip Stock of Pacific Grove to be his best man. Ushers were Ronald Burns and Robert Yingling of Monterey.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Budd chose a beige sheath with gold accessories, and her small hat was of curled chartreuse ostrich feathers.

The mother of the bridegroom was clad in an off-white silk brocade dress and a hat of matching lace.

The young couple received their friends at Nautilus, the Budds' San Antonio Street home, which was decorated with white and gold flowers. Among the guests were two of Carla's childhood and school friends, Judy Hensel of Carmel Knolls, and Mrs. David Rudolph (Connie O'Connor) of Carmel Valley. Another school friend, Mrs. Terry Holland (Mary Elstob) telephoned her felicitations from her home in Schenectady, New York. (Carla had been an attendant at Mary's wedding three years ago, which also took place on Twelfth Night.)

When the newlyweds left for a San Francisco honeymoon, Carla was wearing a black and white tweed suit.

Born in Hawaii, the bride attended Carmel schools from kindergarten through Sunset and Carmel High School, graduating from there with the class of 1959. She was a student at Monterey Peninsula College, spent the summer of 1960 in Europe, and returned to complete a second year at MPC. She has since been living in Berkeley.

Robert is a graduate of Richmond High School, attended Contra Costa Junior College, and spent two years in the United States Marine Corps. Moving to the Monterey Peninsula in 1959, he worked with the Monterey Police Department and attended MPC.

The couple will make their home in Monterey, where Bob is connected with the Pacific Gas & Electric Company, until the 1963 fall semester.

They then plan to leave for northern California where Bob will complete his education.

New Year Babies

Fourteen families in and around Carmel have particular reason to welcome 1963.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. McCurdy became the parents of a son, Christopher Allen, on 28 December.

Deena Lynn Fussell, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Fussell, was born 29 December.

New Year's Eve is the birthday of Jacob Norman Goetz, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen J. Goetz of the United States Forest Service at Big Sur.

A son, Urban Frederick, was born to Mr. and Mrs. George F. Ingram of Carmel Valley on New Year's Day.

Another New Year's Day baby is Gordon Eugene Lutes, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Leo G. Lutes.

Professor and Mrs. Otto Heinz of Upper Trail, Carmel, became the parents of a son, Steven Andrew, on 2 January.

A son, David Charles, was born 3 January to Mr. and Mrs. John P. Kuhn.

Mr. and Mrs. Thad S. Sheridan, Jr., became the parents of a daughter, Laura Lee, on 4 January.

A son born to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sturgill on 7 January has been named David Vincent.

Three babies share a birthday on 8 January: Amy, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hittinger, Jr.; William Earl, the son of Mr. and Mrs. James O. Ratcliffe; and Phillip Mathew, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip G. Rodrigues of Carmel Valley.

A son, Eric Paul, was born on 10 January to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Mello of Carmel Valley.

All 14 babies arrived at the Community Hospital.

Golf Tournament Hosts

The Crosby Tournament contestants have set into motion a round of Pebble Beach parties.

Mr. and Mrs. John Winnett (Peggy Glaser) of Tuxedo Park, New York, are headquartering with Peggy's parents, the James M. R. Glasers in Pebble Beach.

Staying at Cypress Point are the Bing Crosbys, the George L. Colemans, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Roger Lapham, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. William Sprott Boyd, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Winter (sister and brother-in-law of Shreve M. Archer, Jr.) are guests of the Archers.

Mr. and Mrs. Stockton Rush have been invited to stay with the Harry A. Leonards, and the Leonards will host a cocktail party before tomorrow night's dinner dance at The Beach Club. There will be dinner dancing at The Beach Club on Saturday, also a dinner dance the same night at Del Monte Lodge.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Williams of Los Angeles are house guests of the Robert Stantons, who will have a small party tonight. Tomorrow most of the contestants are invited to the Paisano Dinner in Monterey, and Mrs. J. Arch Butts, Jr. will entertain informally for their wives.

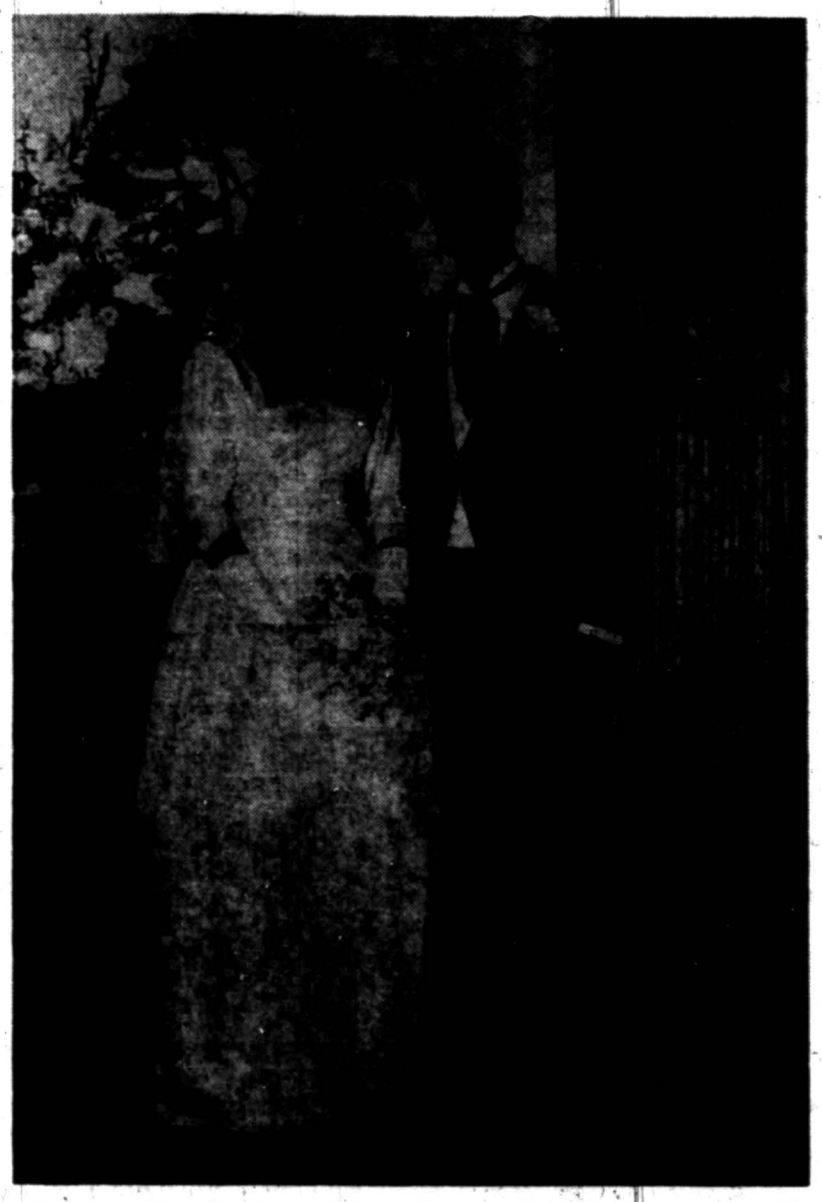
Sunday, during the finals of the tournament, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel F. B. Morse and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Osborne will co-host a cocktail buffet luncheon in the President's House at Del Monte Lodge. The James Hatlos will also entertain that afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Bunn will have as guests Mrs. Bunn's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight William Whiting, of Los Angeles. The Ray Bolgers are staying with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Work.

The Charles Kramers have planned a cocktail party on Saturday. House guests of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hately, Jr. are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Richards of Lafayette; the Hatelys will give a cocktail party in their honor tomorrow night.

Dr. and Mrs. George Campion have brought three couples from San Francisco with them to open their Pebble Beach home. Two of their daughters, Buffy and Tory, will stay with Mrs. Herbert V. Alward, the girls' grandmother, during the tournament.

Mr. and Mrs. Hampton Stewart, Jr. have asked Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hazeltine of Pasadena to join them for the week end.



Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Nields Brown, Jr., above, are pictured at their wedding reception at Del Monte Lodge following their marriage 5 January in Carmel Mission Basilica. The bride is the former Sandra Sue Stolich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter A. Stolich of Pebble Beach. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin N. Brown of Wilmington, Delaware. The Reverend Roger Dieudonne officiated at the ceremony.

The bride, who was escorted to the altar by her father, wore an ivory peau de soie gown with a fitted bodice, portrait neckline, elbow-length sleeves, and a long skirt flowing into a short sweep train. Her bridal crown was of imported lace, and she carried a cascade of white butterfly roses and stephanotis.

Mrs. James Boyce Nute of Palo Alto, Sandra's matron of honor, wore a rose red silk sheath and matching head-piece. She carried a nosegay of pink and red roses and carnations.

James Boyce Nute was the best man. Ushering was Ronald A. Stolich, of Salinas, brother of the bride.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Stolich chose a pale green silk faille dress with matching accessories.

Leaving for a Paris honeymoon, Sandra wore a winter white wool suit with black accessories. The newlyweds will be on their way to Ghana, Africa, where the bridegroom is associated with the Singer Sewing Machine Company in Accra.

The bride graduated from Santa Catalina School for Girls and the University of California at Berkeley, where she was a member of Gamma Phi Beta sorority. She took a master's degree in government at Georgetown University, Washington, D. C.

Her husband is a graduate of Lawrenceville School and Georgetown University.

Carlsons Bound For Guadalajara

Last week Mr. and Mrs. Jerome E. Carlson left by automobile for a leisurely trip to Mexico, visiting friends in Los Angeles and elsewhere on the way.

They will make their headquarters in Guadalajara, hoping to rent a house there, until the end of March, when they plan to return to Carmel.

Mike Blanton Marries

Myrtle Angele Wilking and William Michael Blanton, a former Carmel resident, were married 29 December in a double ring evening ceremony performed in the First Methodist Church of Franklin, Louisiana.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Philip Wilking of New Orleans and Franklin. Mike's parents are William Harrison Blanton of Los Angeles and Mrs. Douglas Eaton Smith of Santa Cruz. His brother, Timothy John Blanton of Westover, Massachusetts, was best man.

A 1959 graduate of Carmel High School, Mike attended Reed College in Portland, Oregon, as did his bride. The young couple will make their home in Los Angeles.

Writers' Party

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Randolph of Carmel Point gave a party recently for members of Maxine Shore's Carmel Adult School class, Writing For Publication. The guests each brought inexpensive gifts useful to writers, with appropriate original verses. Mrs. Helen Small was awarded first prize for her contribution.

Other guests included Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Hazell, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Singhaus, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Mack, Mr. and Mrs. George Bratton, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Heshmati, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen A. James, Mr. and Mrs. Owen G. Patrick, Mrs. M. A. Antoncich, Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Zack, Miss Lisa Thomson, Miss Sally Green, Miss Marilyn Zapp and Miss Eva Dunbar.

A Future Horseman?

Riding pupils of Mrs. Alexander S. Hale — "Sue Sally" to her young equestrians — were overjoyed to hear of the arrival of the Hales' first child, a son named Brook Alexander, on 7 January at the Community Hospital.

Young Brook was born into a horse-loving family. His parents brought three or four horses with them when they moved to Carmel from Southern California last spring. They have since been giving riding lessons after school and on Saturdays to a group of Peninsula youngsters at their San Jose Creek home on the Riley Ranch, near Point Lobos. Brook's father, who is stationed at Fort Ord, is temporarily on duty at Hunter-Liggett Military Reservation.

The baby's paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Hale of Canoga Park, arrived here yesterday to greet the newest member of the family. Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Richard Talmadge of Pacific Palisades. Mrs. Talmadge, also a horsewomen, has been visiting the Hales, getting acquainted with her new grandson, and taking over Sue Sally's riding classes.

Roving Reporter Visits

Returning to Carmel for three months is Florence Blake Smith, whose book, "Cow Chips 'n' Cactus," was recently published. Mrs. Smith is a roving reporter for the Sheridan Press of Sheridan, Wyoming, and lives at Story, Wyoming, in the Big Horn Mountains, when not roving the globe.

She spent last winter in Palma de Mallorca, Spain, and finds the Peninsula very much like that island spot overlooking the Mediterranean Sea.

Guatemala Holiday

Mr. and Mrs. James Moody are still excited about their two weeks' visit to Guatemala. Jetting to Mexico City 15 December and to Guatemala City the next day, they arrived right in the midst of Christmas festivities — "a fascinating juxtaposition of Roman Catholic and pagan ritual." Family groups of Indians took part in an almost continual holiday fiesta, with dancing, religions processions, firecrackers and fireworks going on all day and all night.

Bus trips took the Moodys to the old colonial city of Antigua, much of it destroyed by earthquakes; outlying Indian villages; Chichicastenago, at 7,500 feet elevation; Lake Atitla, surrounded by volcanoes.

Stopping off at Yucatan on their return, the Moodys visited the thriving city of Merida, also the pre-Columbian ruins of Chichen Itza and Uxmal.

Flying home over the Gulf of Mexico, they were impressed with the view of Mexico City at night, in holiday mood — "everything lit up, but so beautifully, not just garish neon lighting."

The Moodys, who got back to Carmel New Year's Eve, took lots of pictures everywhere they went, and are "rarin' to go again."

FILMS

Film Tragedy

Vittorio de Sica's enduring film masterpiece of passion and social truth, Shoeshine, will complete the fall semester Theatre Arts Group of films at Monterey Peninsula College. Two screenings, one at 7 and one at 9 p.m., will be presented Friday, 18 January. Free tickets will be available at the MPC administration building from 14 January.

Called "one of the giants of the post-war Italian neo-realist school," Shoeshine received the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences Special Award in 1947.

The main figures in the film are two ragged bootblacks of post-war Rome whom De Sica found on the streets crying "Shoe-Sha, Joe?" to the American occupation forces. Caught between poverty and adult apathy, the children deal in the black market and are sent to a reform school. Their moving friendship ends in tragedy, for they are unequal to the pressure around them.

"It is with Shoeshine" said Mario Gromo in Fifty Years of Italian Cinema, "that Vittorio de Sica first took his place in the history of film".

The spring Theater Arts Group of film showings will open at MPC with Death of a Cyclist 8 February.

Literary Images

The translation of literary images into the visual dogmatism of motion pictures has always been attended by the risks and disappointments of distortion, deliberate or inadvertant. But occasionally there appears the result of a successful excursion. When it does, memorable cinema is created and great literature is illuminated.

Several instances of brilliant literary interpretations will soon be shown on the screen of the Hill Theater. Commencing 24 January, and appearing one night only on alterant Thursdays thereafter, the series, "World Heritage Film and Book Program," jointly sponsored by Scholastic Magazines, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and the National Advisory Committee of Educators, will consist of eight films, "David Copperfield", "Pride and Prejudice", "Captains Courageous", "Little Women", "A Tale of Two Cities", "Kim", "Julius Ceasar" and "The Good Earth."

Special rates of 75c for high school and college students, and $1.25 for adults will apply.

Phelan Awards

Prizes worth $3,000.00 are to be given to painters who are native Californians. This was announced today by the trustees of the James D. Phelan Awards in Literature and Art, who are Charles Kendrick, John A. Sullivan, Honorable Ben C. Duniway, and General D. O'Sullivan (Ret.).

Five awards of $500, $400, $300, $200, and $100 are offered in each of separate competitions to be held in Northern and Southern California.

Applicants must be native born Californians between the ages of 20 and 40. Applications must be made on a special form; they can be obtained, along with additional information, from the Phelan Awards, 814 Grant Building, 1095 Market Street, San Francisco 3, California.

Two juries of selection and award will select from the paintings submitted and they will recommend to the trustees the winners of the awards.

The paintings will combine into a travelling show which will be in circuit for one year, exhibiting at the galleries throughout California.

FOR SOME LUCKY, SPREADING FAMILY there are 2½ acres in a protected area of Carmel Valley with lovely trees, big family orchard and picture garden. On it are an appealing 4 bedroom home of great beauty and a separate, sunny guest house. Your family can grow here in health and happiness (there's even a stable for a horse or two), and you would always be proud to own this ideal property. Happy to show it by appointment.

BEAUTY AND THE BEST can be yours by owning this 3 bedroom home with breath taking views on the ocean, the passing whales and the mountains. All rooms are large and have captivating views. The kitchen has everything you could wish for, including a built-in refrigerator-freezer, and teak cabinets. Asking $60,000 and you can't duplicate it.

IN THE HIGHLANDS we have a large lot with fascinating views of the surf. One of the loveliest of oaks included at $16,000.

Crosby Tournament

ning about, too much "oh, there he is!" as they are lining up a putt. But adulation never annoyed anyone, unless it went to somebody else. Furthermore, for many who never have played golf, never intend to, and still sneeringly refer to the royal and ancient as "cow pasture pool," the event is a fine excuse to come here for the attending excitement of a major sporting event. It entitles them to join dinner table or barside conversations for months to come.

("Palmer said 'pardon me', as he ducked under the rope. Yessir, looked right at me and that's what he said.")

(At the St. Francis: "Dennis O'Keefe was just about to swear when he hit one into the boondonks, I think they call it; anyhow, it went into some trees, and just as he was about to swear he saw me looking at him and he smiled the sweetest smile, raised his hand as though he had known me all of his life and said 'It's a tough life, kid.' I could just have died.")

This is the Crosby. A melange, a luau, a tralala, a yearly get-together. It has replaced the State Championship in social importance. People come from all over the world for the house parties during these few days.

It is a Scotch in hand while looking at a drive. It is a wink at a pretty face in the gallery, just after missing a crucial putt.

It is a "hello, John, long time no see," interspersed with golf.

Oh, the pro's are important, but they are not the whole cheese. Only a few hundred purists came out to watch Palmer and Player and Nelson and his partner in their recent televised Championship Golf Match.

The rest of the 50,000 people who will land here during the next few days are waiting for the Crosby, a luau, a Scotch in hand and a tralala.
